Re: Docket Nos. 98N-1230, 97P-0197 and 96P-0418

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am writing to express my concern over the forced molting of hens. Not only is this starvation cruel, but it could lead to salmonella poisoning and is a health concern.

The FDA must do more than simply place bacteria warning labels on egg cartons and regulate egg refrigeration temperatures. The FDA should prohibit the practice of forced molting because it has been scientifically shown to promote disease by destroying the starving hens' immune systems.

The FDA has the jurisdiction to ban the forced molting practice by virtue of its injurious effect on human health. The FDA should ban the forced molting of laying hens because forced molting is a primary cause of infectious diseases in hens, eggs and the consumption of eggs. The cruelty of the hens and the contamination are directly linked.

The FDA was petitioned in April of 1998 to ban forced molting. That petition should be granted without further delay.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Sharon Oscar
